Christiaan Barnard was born to Dutch descendants on November 8, 1922, in Beaufort West, South Africa. Barnard along with his three brothers grew up extremely poor and attended the local public schools. Barnard then went on to the University of Cape Town where he received a master's degree in medicine and practiced for several years in his native country. As a young doctor experimenting on dogs, Barnard developed a remdy for the arthritis handbood 1977, 50 ways to a healthy heart 2001 and the donor 1996. Barnard authored include two autobiographies: one life 1969 and second life 1993. As a surgeon in South Africa, Barnard performed the world's first human to human heart transplant on December 3, 1967. Dr. Barnard's pioneering achievement marked a point of inflection, the sheer novelty of the surgical procedure and the number of patients it could potentially benefit made it a landmark feat. Barnard's second autobiography, The Second Life, was published in 1993, eight years before his death on September 2, 2001.
