Venice the Byzantine protectorate, Venice the ally of Byzantium, Venice the partner of Byzantium, Byzantium Venice, and the First Crusade. The proliferation of Venetian merchants in Byzantine cities during the Central Middle Ages created tensions between the two countries, and it was a Venetian navy that sacked the capital of Byzantium in 1453.

Donald Nicol’s book Byzantium and Venice: A Study in Diplomatic and Cultural Relations considers this topic in depth. Venetian merchants created tensions between the two countries and it was a Venetian navy that sacked the capital of Byzantium in 1453.

The Treaty of Nymphaeum was a trade and defense pact signed between the Empire of Nicaea and the Republic of Genoa in Nymphaion in March 1261. This treaty would have a major impact on both the restored Byzantine Empire and the Republic of Genoa that would later dictate their histories for several centuries to come.

Norwich John Julius 2000: Byzantium and Venice: A Study in Diplomatic and Cultural Relations.

This book traces the diplomatic, cultural, and commercial links between Constantinople and Venice. It aims to show how with the encouragement of the Fourth Crusade in 1204, the Venetians came to dominate first the Genoese and thereafter the whole Byzantine economy.
