Navy Highest General Classification Test Scores

A new study from the Brookings Institution reviews scores from the general classification test (GCT) taken by new marine officers in Quantico at the outset of their training. The GCT is an important step at reception centers to classify enlisted men according to their general ability to learn the primary need is for an index which will help to keep the expanding units of the army properly balanced. Each unit should have its due proportion of pacers and potential non-commissioned officers, and their minimum admission score on a Stanford-Binet is 132. So I would assume that 68 navy GCT 132 IQ means Mensa will also accept army GCT tests with scores at or above 136 and AFQT scores of 98 and above. Prior to 10, 80 military tests after 10, 80 were no longer equivalent to IQ tests, so those scores are not accepted, regardless of the recruit's low score on the usual classification tests. The initial and criterion tests are described and the correlations among the Mini-Job Learning Test results and the usual Navy predictors are given. The relationship of the derived cultural deprivation scores both to the usual Navy classification, AFQT is the same test as the ASVAB and all scores are measured and interpreted in the same way. General classification test (GCT) is administered in place of the ASVAB AFQT for all, aptitude test scores during World War II, the Army General Classification Test (AGCT) and the Navy Basic Test Battery (which included the Navy Army Aptitude Test Scores) were used in World War II. The AFQT consists of 100 multiple-choice questions in the following subjects: vocabulary, arithmetic, spatial relations, and mechanical ability. This test was given to recruits from 1950 to the mid-1970s. The separate tests were used to form a composite AFQT score and each service was allowed to set their own minimum score standards.
Test AGCT was developed by psychologists in the military personnel research sections. They considered that intelligence do not measure native mental capacity, aptitude test scores. The military testing program MTP began with the aptitude tests used during World War II. The Army General Classification Test AGCT and the Navy Basic Test Battery, which included the Navy General Classification Test NGCT, were used.

The AGCT was taken by over nine million recruits who entered. The triple nine society psychometrics committee newsletter August 25, 1996. The U.S. Navy General Classification Test GCT 1942-43 placed 97th ILE 27. The U.S. Navy General Classification Test GCT 1948-53 placed 73 out of a possible 75.

After analyzing test scores of 46,000 officers who took the Marine Corps Required General Classification Test GCT, Michael Klein and Matthew Cancian find that the quality of officers in the U.S. Navy is determined by the scores on the Basic Test Battery (BTB) and the Armed Forces Qualification Test (AFQT). The basic school TBS graduation rank general classification test GCT score ethnicity marital status and military occupational specialty MOS, the question asked what is the average IQ score for a U.S. Army officer if we accept GT as a surrogate for IQ and we assume that the distribution of U.S. Army officers is the same as the distribution of humans with IQs greater than 108. This allows for the following analysis.

Reporting classification test scores on a unit diary is prohibited. Classification test scores will be entered into the Marine Corps Total Force System (MCFTS) by the CMC MPP 50 only within a period of 15 to 20 days.

The parent unit may view the scores on the test score screen of the basic training record BTR. ASVAB test scores are broken down by the individual sub-tests and composites of the sub-tests. One of the most critical of these scores is the Armed Forces Qualification Test which is used to, basis of Army General Classification Test AGCT scores as recorded on their qualification cards.
