April 18th, 2019 - While redshift can be used to tell us about the recession velocity of non-relativistic galaxies, we also need to find a way to measure the distance to these galaxies. Astronomers have two main methods to measure these distances: parallax and cepheid variable stars – there’s a Khan Academy video on cepheid variable stars.

Single phase 240v and double phase 240v Physics Forums
November 24th, 2011 - Looking for someone that can explain to me the phase shift on a single phase 240v system. I just read in a book that the phases in a two-phase system are 180 degrees out of phase from each other. I guess I have misunderstood this for years. I always thought that the phases in a single phase system were 180 degrees out of phase. I never really researched two phase since it is not really used.
