The goals benefits of chum kiu in wing tsun kungfu include practicing a number of useful skills. Some of the benefits of training chum kiu are as follows: practice using the turning or yiu ma with techniques to help generate power in strikes and blocks; introduces kicking techniques to the student, which is a vital weapon component in wing chun. The style’s creator, Leung Ting, developed the system to be easier to learn and teach compared to more traditional styles of wing chun where chum kiu attacked and defended linearly and biu tze cut through the opponent’s defenses from different angles. Wooden dummy focuses on attacking from multiple angles simultaneously while moving around. The second form, chum kiu, focuses on coordinated movement of body mass and entry techniques to bridge the gap between practitioner and opponent and move in to disrupt their structure and balance. Apart from a sash system, the popular wing tsun system under Leung Ting uses a number system to explain rank. In this particular, Grandmaster Leung Ting has often referred to the footwork as the most important skill in wing tsun and the most difficult to master. It was very important in the lawless environment of the frontier even in the villages in ancient China that a person be self-sufficient.
